Ethical youth can bring innovation and integrity to politics, but criminalisation, high election expenditure and public distrust often discourage their participation.

Measures to Encourage Youth

- Electoral reforms: Ensure transparent political funding, enforce expenditure limits and act against electoral malpractice.
- Internal party democracy: Promote merit-based candidate selection and opportunities for young leaders.
- Civic education: Introduce constitutional values, political literacy and youth parliaments in educational institutions.
- Financial support: Improve access to campaign resources and training for deserving young candidates.
- Positive role models: Recognise ethical politicians and promote their achievements.
- Institutional accountability: Ensure timely action against corruption and misuse of political power.

Conclusion

Ethical youth will enter politics when the system rewards integrity rather than money and muscle power. Electoral reforms and a supportive democratic culture are essential.
