Indian Economy · GS - III

Examine the role of Employees' Provident Fund reforms in improving retirement security and financial flexibility for India's organised and emerging workforce.

EXAM YEAR	PAPER	SUBJECT
DAILY PRACTICE 21/11/2026	GS - III	Indian Economy

MARKS	WORD LIMIT
10	~150 words

Answer Hint

Social security, EPF, Systematic Withdrawal Plan, retirement income, gig workers, financial inclusion, corpus preservation, digital claim settlement, labour formalisation.

Model Answer

Introduction

The Employees' Provident Fund (EPF) is a major pillar of India's formal-sector social security system. Recent EPFO reforms seek to balance immediate financial needs with long-term retirement protection.

Significance of Recent Reforms

1. Withdrawal flexibility: Reducing the minimum balance requirement from 25% to 10% increases access to accumulated savings during financial emergencies.

2. Faster settlement: Shorter waiting periods for final withdrawal after unemployment improve liquidity during job transitions.

3. Systematic Withdrawal Plan: Periodic payouts can provide retirees with a regular income stream while allowing the remaining corpus to generate returns.

4. Digitalisation: CITES 2.0 and automated claim processing can reduce delays and improve service delivery.

5. Wider coverage: Voluntary and third-party contributions may create additional retirement-saving opportunities for gig and informal workers.

Concerns

Excessive withdrawals may weaken retirement adequacy, while periodic payouts require sound fund management and transparent implementation.

Way Forward

EPFO should strengthen financial literacy, digital grievance redressal and awareness of long-term retirement planning. Reforms must also ensure actuarial sustainability and effective protection of members' savings.

Conclusion

EPF reforms can make social security more flexible and accessible. Their success will depend on balancing short-term liquidity with long-term financial security and extending meaningful retirement protection to India's changing workforce.

BECOME IAS
AI POWERED UPSC PREP