Modern History · GS - II

Political instability and internal security challenges in Bangladesh have implications for India's neighbourhood policy. Examine.

EXAM YEAR	PAPER	SUBJECT
DAILY PRACTICE 22/11/2026	GS - II	Modern History

MARKS	WORD LIMIT
15	~250 words

Answer Hint

India–Bangladesh relations, political transition, border management, minority security, trade and connectivity, regional stability, non-interference, diplomatic engagement.

Model Answer

Introduction

Bangladesh occupies a strategically important position in India's neighbourhood, sharing a long land border and deep historical, economic and cultural connections. Political instability and internal violence can therefore affect India's security and regional interests.

Implications for India

1. Border security: Political unrest may increase risks of illegal migration, trafficking and cross-border criminal activity.
2. Regional connectivity: Instability can disrupt transport, trade and connectivity projects linking India's Northeast with Bangladesh and the wider Bay of Bengal region.
3. Security cooperation: Political uncertainty may affect cooperation against extremist networks and transnational organised crime.
4. Minority concerns: Violence against vulnerable communities can create humanitarian concerns and affect bilateral public opinion.

5. Strategic interests: Prolonged instability may create opportunities for external powers to expand their influence in India's neighbourhood.

India's Policy Challenges

India must balance its security interests with respect for Bangladesh's sovereignty and democratic processes. Excessive political involvement may undermine bilateral trust, while diplomatic disengagement could weaken cooperation.

Way Forward

- Maintain engagement with relevant political stakeholders and constitutional institutions.
- Strengthen border management and intelligence-sharing.
- Protect trade, connectivity and development cooperation from political disruptions.
- Encourage peaceful political dialogue and the rule of law.
- Address humanitarian concerns through established diplomatic channels.

Conclusion

A stable, peaceful and economically prosperous Bangladesh is important for India's neighbourhood policy. India's approach should combine strategic vigilance, constructive diplomacy and respect for sovereign democratic processes.

BECOME IAS
AI POWERED UPSC PREP